THE town of Case Grande, though quiet enjoys frequent: transactions in real estate which is a clear indication that the residents have abundant faith in the future of their little city.

News from the outside proves the supposed. It also proves that with a proper system of storage Arizona could be made the garden spot of the world.

A MEETING for the purpose of organiz ing a Board of Trade will be held at the office of Territorial Auditor Hughes at 7:30 p. m. March 5th. It should by all means be largely attended. Tucson needs such a body and it should be composed o' represenstive men. Let every wide awake business man turn out and make an enthusiastic meeting.

CARDINAL SAN FELICE, Archbishop of Naples is spoken of as successor to Leo XIII. who is failing rapidly. Should, Italy, it is quite probable that Lavigerie the French primate, or Cardinal Gibbons, of Baltimore, may succeed to the throne of the Holy See. The Italians have always outnumbered in the pontifical college but the admission of new members from Africa and South America changes the complextion and makes it no longer possible for an Italian hierarchy to control the papal succession. In his later days Leo has renewed the efforts to secure the political separation from Italy which was lost under Pope Pius' time, but it has been unavailing. If the Italian government were inclined to yield a point or two there is little question but San Felice would be the coming head of the church. If not the succession is open.

Ir is interesting to to follow the advocates of a "tariff for revenue only" in their inconsistent wanderings after criticism of the existing law. Just now they are greatly exercised over the fact that some advance was made on certain grades of tobacco, and hasten to array in opposition every consumer who is likely to be effected thereby.

Now, criticism of the tobacco tariff by the heralds of a revenue only system invites attention to the treatment of the subject under the British revenue law. which is so nearly suited to the notions of "reform" workers in this country Great Britain levies a tariff on tobacco ranging from 87 cents per pound on the natural leaf to $1.32 per pound for the manufactured article, and collects in the neighborhood of $50,000,000 in some years or about half the revenue that comes from her tariff.

But inasmuch as tobacco is that can be grown on a variety of soils, in many portions of the kingdom-and formerly was given to some extent in ed is pressing upon Parliament with having nearly touched 250 at Buenos Ireland-this heavy tariff of five hundred to one thousand per cent, laid against importations would naturally serve as a stimulant to home production. in other words, this would be a protective tariff-for no crops now raised by British farmers are nearly so profitable as tobacco would be under the existing law. And at this point a most interesting aspect of the "revenue only" policy is brought into view. By law the raising of tobacco is prohibited throughout the United Kingdom under penalties attaching to felony, to the end that every pound used shall first pay revenue at some port of entry. From the standpoint of "reformers" this showing operates still further to the disadvantages of their policy, in view of the fact that least half of the British consumption of tobacco is supplied from the United States-mostly in the natural state, as the difference of over thirty States Treasury notes authorized by the cents per pound between the raw and manufactured article is a practical ex- there were in the treasury 'on Jan. 31 clusion of the latter, and by so much a protection for the British manufacturer

It is in behalf of the framers of such laws as this that attorneys for "reform" in our tariff system are moving up and down the land and urging voters to believe that they are opposed by "tariff taxes" that force these British gentlemen to pay for the privileges of sending months may naturally be expected to their wares into our markets-while in have an influence on prices generally, no single instance is such tariff one- but especially upon rates of interest, fourth as high as that levied by British and consequently on the prices of inlaw on American-grown tobacco.

One comes in the summer and the other in the winter. Although the total amount of the annual rainfall is small, the percipitations during these two rainy seasons is sometimes very great. But a large proportion of the water escapes in floods and does the country very little good. A great dear of this storm water could be imflood less disastrous than was at first pounded and kept in reservoirs until there would be occasion to use it in irri-
